NEW YORK GENTLEMEN

President Roosevelt and Wadsworth Humorously Referred To

BY MINORITY LEADER

Meat Inspection Amendment to the Agricultural Appropriation Bill Adopted and Measure Returned to Senate.

Washington, June 20.—Mr. Wadsworth Tuesday reported to the house the agricultural appropriation bill with the compromise amendment relating to meat inspection. The bill was referred to the committee of the whole house, to be taken up later. Meat inspection amendment was adopted.

Mr. Williams of Mississippi enlivened the debate by calling attention to the differences of opinion between two sons of New York, the president and Mr. Wadsworth. "Now is the winter of our discontent in the glorious summer by this son of New York," said Mr. Williams, which caught the humor of the house.

In a semi-humorous vein Mr. Williams continued: "We must, under the rules of the house, vote on this proposed legislation just as it comes to us, nursed by the speaker and the president, and approved of by the committee, because the committee on agriculture could not well do anything except approve after these two great ruling authorities had spoken. We must vote it down. There has been thundering in the index at the other end of the line that was not followed up, but we must remember, Mr. Speaker, you and I, even you know more than I, that men, like all other products of iron, are subject to expansion and contraction by the effect of the weather. (Applause and laughter.) As a broad general principle, Mr. Speaker, all sanitary legislation ought to be paid for by the public. The reason for that rule is that nobody is, as a rule, responsible for unsanitary conditions. When the bubonic plague or yellow fever invades the country everybody knows that nobody wants to be the vehicle of the transfer of those dangerous diseases. Nobody wants to catch them for the purpose of giving them to other people. That is the reason for the rule that the public ought to pay the expense, but every reason points out the exception. Sometimes an unsanitary condition is brought about by the voluntary action of evil doers. When ever that is the case, then the expense of curing this condition which has been brought about by their acts ought to be borne by them, (applause) and I, for one, had hoped that the thundering in the index about making the evil doers stand the expense of curing their own evil doing would be followed up more strenuously than it had been. But here we are. We are faced with this condition, and being faced with it, it is about as good an outcome as could be expressed.

"Now, I wish to add this: There has been some muck raking that has been going on in connection with this matter, and I want to pay my individual tribute to a member of this house. I think that in this particular legislation he has been mistaken, especially upon the point of not making the evil doers pay for curing the evil condition brought about by their own action. There has been some muck raking in which there has been a disposition to charge all sorts of wrong motives on the gentleman from New York, (Mr. Wadsworth.) I have known him for ten years. I have known him to cast more votes against his own interest than any man in this house. (Applause.) He is a worthy son of a noble sire, (applause), and an honest man if God makes honest men, (applause), and I believe He does. If the abbreviated disturbance between the two gentlemen from New York had come off reasoning would have been with the other gentleman from New York, but my affections and feelings would have been with this gentleman from New York. (Applause.) I think we have had entirely too much tolerance of the idea that whenever men honestly differ about a public measure their motives are to be impugned and their integrity to be attacked. (Applause)

The speaker appointed as conferees Wadsworth, Scott and Lever of South Carolina.

Mr. Williams interposed a vigorous protest at the last appointment, the chair having passed over Messrs. Lamb and Bowie, both being opposed to the committee, while Mr. Lever favored it. Mr. Williams said it was a "slap in the face" of Mr. Lamb, and he protested. A vigorous conference was held at the desk between the speaker, Mr. Williams and Mr. Wadsworth. The speaker withdrew the conferees temporarily, but later re-appointed Messrs. Wadsworth and Scott and substituted Mr. Lamb for Mr. Lever, the latter having asked to be excused.

When the bill was returned to the senate Senator Proctor chairman of the committee on agriculture, asked that the meat inspection bill be retained and the bill lie on the table.

ATTACK OF PULIJANES

Do Some Disastrous Work on the Island of Leyte.

KILLED FIVE POLICE

Latter Were Taken Unawares and Desperate Encounter Took Place,
but Natives Greatly Outnumbered Others.

Manila, June 20.—A band of 300 Pulijanes under Caesarlo Pastor attacked the town of Burauen, Island of Leyte. They killed five policemen, wounded five and captured the remainder of the force except the lieutenant in command. Pastor, the Pulijane leader, was killed during the encounter. The attack occurred at an early hour Tuesday morning. The police were caught unawares and the sentinel pushed from his post. The bandits then entered the tribunal and a hand-to-hand fight took place. The police fought desperately, but were overcome by superior numbers. Loss of Pulijanes is believed to have been great, but it cannot be estimated, as they carried off the dead and wounded after the fight. The municipal records were taken from the tribunal, piled in the street and burned. The destruction of these papers was one of the most serious phases of the raid, as they included deeds, licenses, receipts, etc. The safe containing the town funds was not disturbed. The bandits carried away the arms of the police and a quantity of ammunition. A detachment of constabulary, under Lieutenant Johnson, immediately started in pursuit of the Pulijanes. At the time the raid was made the provincial governor was in another part of the island securing evidence wanted by the pardon commission to obtain release of prisoners in Beldid penitentiary.

Mrs. Meyers Says Holtman Knows She Did Not Kill Her Husband.

Liberty, Mo., June 20.—Mrs. Aggie Meyers, convicted of killing her husband, Clarence Meyers, to whom Governor Folk promised to grant a respite, talked in her cell about her case. She regained her composure following the announcement that the supreme court had denied her a trial. "I am truly thankful," said Mrs. Meyers, "to the governor for giving me additional time in which to take the few legal measures remaining. If every legal measure fails and the good women of Missouri and the newspapers who are endeavoring to secure a commutation of my sentence are unsuccessful, then I will mount the scaffold and pay the penalty of the people's prejudice without fear of the future, for I am innocent of killing my husband, and Holtman knows it. He should tell the truth and prepare to meet his God with clean lips."

LAVIN RETURNS.

Goes to Lexington, Tex., to Answer a Charge of Robbery.

Chicago, June 20.—United States Commissioner Foote has directed that Patrick Lavin of Chicago be returned to Lexington, Tex., to stand trial for alleged robbery of the postoffice at Dime Box, that state. Several witnesses testified that Lavin was in Chicago at the time of the robbery, but Sheriff Scarborough of Lexington and several other people swore they saw Lavin in Lexington at that time. Charlie Coleman, the alleged partner of Lavin, was killed by the sheriff at the time of the robbery.

CULBERSON'S REQUEST.

Wants to Know Whether Proceedings
In Case Were Dropped.

Washington, June 20.—Senator Culberson introduced a resolution calling on the attorney general to lay before the senate all correspondence in regard to the Interstate Livestock Insurance company of the District of Columbia and asking whether proceedings against the concern had been dropped and why. The company operated extensively in Louisiana and Texas and cattlemen have been asking Senator Culberson to probe the alleged squelching of proceedings against it.

BEATEN TO DEATH.

Woman's Husband Is Alleged to Have Done Dreadful Deed.

Texarkana, June 20.—Upon returning home from an emancipation ball about 1 o'clock Wednesday morning Etta Trammell, a negress, was beaten to death with an iron bar. The woman's husband, who was alleged to be hiding in the shadow of the porch, is charged with the crime. Trammell had been in an Arkansas jail until a few days ago, when he broke out. He is charged with theft. He had not been captured up to Wednesday noon.

FIELD FURNISHED FACTS.

American Firm Supplies Meat to Three British Military Stations.

London, June 20.—William Field, member of parliament for St. Patrick's division of Dublin and champion of the British meat dealers, who has been so actively questioning ministers for the last week, in reply to a further question in the house elicited the information from War Secretary Haldine "that an American firm, long established in the London meat market," holds the contracts to supply meat to three military stations in the United Kingdom. These contracts do not include the supply of canned provisions, but occasionally preserved meat is issued for army reserves stores in order to insure turn over stock. The proportion of frozen mutton is not allowed to exceed two-sevenths of the mutton supplied to the troops.

The interest of Field in the meat question is undoubtedly due to the fact that he is in the provision business. He is president of the Irish Cattle Traders and Stock Owners' association; vice president of the National Federation of Meat Trades of the United Kingdom, honorary secretary of the Dublin Victualers' association and governor of the Royal Irish Veterinary college.

Judge Holds He Must Not Do This, and Assesses a Fine.

Shreveport, June 20.—An officer's right to destroy property without a warrant in misdemeanor cases was denied by a decision of Judge Webb in the city court, who assessed a fine of $10 against R. Neyland, a police sergeant, against whom W. F. Britt filed an affidavit setting forth that the room operated by him was raided by the officer, who smashed in a door.

ARABS REBELLIOUS.

Turkish Soldiers Also Kept Busy Keeping Down a Mutiny.

Constantinople, June 20.—Marshal Feizi Pasha, commanding the Turkish troops in Wemen province, whose hands are already full in attempting to subdue rebel Arabs, have been obliged to deplete his slim stock of ammunition in employing artillery against his own mutinous soldiers. Whole companies, anxious to get home, mutinied and decided to proceed to the coast. A stubborn fight between loyal and disaffected troops ensued. The latter were finally vanquished by fire of artillery and surrendered after sustaining heavy losses.

The Persian ambassador has complained to the Turkish government that further dispatch of troops and munitions to the Persian frontier constitutes danger to the good conditions existing between the two countries.

SWEPT TO DEATH.

Tremendous Air Pressure Causes Two Lives to Be Lost.

New York, June 20.—Two men lost their lives, another was fatally injured and six more severely hurt as the result of an accident in the Pennsylvania tunnel between Thirty-fourth street, this city and Long Island City Wednesday. Thirty-five men were at work in the tunnel at the time of the accident. The accident was caused by the tremendous air pressure necessary at the head of the tunnel to hold back the soft mud into which the shield is forced. The mud under this shield was blown out and two workmen who were caught in the flow of air were swept to death in the river.

BOND ACCEPTS.

Will Soon Qualify as Auditor of the Railroad Commissioner.

Austin, June 20.—The railroad commission received a telegram that J. H. Bond of Dallas, who was elected auditor of the railroad commission, stating that he accepts the position. He says he will be here in a few days to assume his duties. Mr. Bond for some time has been traveling auditor of the Texas and Pacific company.

DIES SUDDENLY.

Alderman Had Been Greatly Excited During Progress of a Trial.

Easton, Pa., June 21.—Joseph Breininger, an alderman, was found dead in his office Wednesday. Breininger figured in a criminal court case of an eight-year-old boy and the trial was set for Tuesday. The court dismissed the lad and severely scored the alderman. Breininger became greatly excited during the ordeal before the court, and it is thought this was the cause of his death.

INDIAN AS A LAWYER

FULL-BLOODED SENECA MAY PRACTICE AT GOTHAM BAR.

John L. Snyder Will Be First Red Man Ever Admitted If Legislature Approves Bill Before It—Graduate of Carlisle.

New York.—John L. Snyder, a full blooded member of the Seneca tribe, will be the first Indian to practice law at the bar of the state of New York, if the governor approves a bill which the legislature has passed to authorize the state board of law examiners to admit him to the bar examination. As Snyder is not a citizen of the state, a special act was necessary to enable him to take the bar examination, and this was introduced by Senator Albert T. Fancher, who represents the Fifth district, of which Snyder is a resident. The young Seneca is a protégé of Senator Fancher, who is a wealthy bachelor largely interested in oil wells.

In the formidable Indian league of the Six Nations, which once held in subjection the territory extending from the Hudson to Lake Superior and from the St. Lawrence to the Delaware, the Seneca nation played a prominent part. When the league was finally broken and its members scattered after the revolutionary war the white men took possession of its lands and the remnant of the Seneca tribe was finally settled upon a reservation near Salamanca, in Cattaraugus county. The Senecas still live on this reservation as a tribe, retaining their tribal customs and traditions. At the same time they have adopted much from the civilization which surrounds them, and they mingle freely and on equal terms with their white neighbors.

In the veins of the young Seneca lawyer runs some of the oldest and purest blood in America. The line of his descent goes back to the times before Columbus crossed the Atlantic and is lost in the traditions of his race. Of all the Indian tribes the Six Nations were the proudest and their merciless league represented the extreme advance of Indian statecraft.

Snyder is 26 years old, six feet in height, with an athletic figure and the ease of bearing that is conferred by his descent through centuries of forest ancestry. He lives on the reservation with the 2,700 other members of his tribe. He married a Seneca girl and they have two children.

Several members of the Seneca tribe have risen to distinction in the callings of civilization. Gen. Ely Parker, who served as a civil engineer on the staff of Gen. Grant and who copied from Grant's notes the famous terms of surrender which were given to Gen. Lee, was a full blooded Seneca and a graduate of the Albany Normal school. Oscar Snyder, father of the applicant for admission to the bar, was a school-mate of James S. Whipple, state forest, fish and game commissioner. He was killed in a railway accident.

His son was educated at the Carlisle Indian school, and he is now studying law in an office in Salamanca. He is permitted to practice in the peace-makers' court, which is the Indian court on the reservation and which corresponds to the county court in the judicial plan of the state. He cannot take the regular state bar examination without an enabling act because he is not a citizen.

He might abandon his tribal relation and become a citizen were it not for the fact that by leaving his tribe he would sacrifice his interest in the tribal possessions, which are held in common. A bill is now pending in congress to dissolve the tribal relation of the Senecas and to make them all citizens. When this bill becomes a law the tribal property will be divided among the members of the tribe and each Seneca will have about $2,000 with which to start on his career of independence. Snyder therefore finds himself placed in a dilemma. If he waits until the property is allotted he will be too old to become a member of the state bar, and if he anticipates his citizenship by leaving his tribe he will lose his share of the tribal lands.

Senator Fancher's bill opens a way out of this difficulty by providing that Snyder may be examined for the bar, "notwithstanding the fact that said Snyder is not a citizen, provided that at the time of applying for admission to such examinations he shall be otherwise qualified to take the same and shall comply with the rules of the court of appeals and of the state board of law examiners in respect thereto; and upon passing such examination said Snyder shall be admitted to practice law in this state, with the same powers and subject to the same duties as if he were a citizen."

Friendly relations exist between the Senecas and their white neighbors, some of whom have been adopted into the tribe as a mark of esteem. Commissioner Whipple was thus adopted a few weeks ago at a formal ceremony, which was a great event on the reservation. He received the Indian name of Odonjea. The ceremony of adoption was frequently practiced by the Indians as a means of supplying the losses caused by their constant warfare with each other, and many white prisoners in the early days owed their lives to adoption.

STORE USED BY LINCOLN.

Old Structure Recently Demolished at Petersburg, Ill., Where Martyred President Studied Law.

Petersburg, Ill.—The structure known as "Lincoln's Old Store" which, until recently stood in the rear of the Bishop building here, is depicted in the illustration. It was first erected at New Salem, and was occupied by Lincoln as a store from 1832 until 1835. In it the future president studied law and mastered the intricacies of mathematics without a teacher; and while he occupied it he also laid out the City of Petersburg and many near by towns. Robert Bishop, of this city, bought the structure in 1836 and moved it here. Lincoln himself assisting in the operation. It was used for a gunshop for some time. Subsequently, when Mr. Bishop erected his brick structure, the "Lincoln store" was pushed to the rear. Relic hunters had carried off much of the old building, and a storm wrecked the roof, so that its demolition became necessary.

INDIAN PRINCE IN AMERICA.

The Maharajah Gaekwar, the second greatest prince in India and the direct descendant of one of the maharatta generals who were the moguls or rulers of India when the East India company wrested control from them, is now in this country on a visit, accompanied by his wife, the maharane, and his brother, Sampatras, who is acting as his secretary. He rules the state of Baroda, with its 2,000,000 population and 8,000 square miles. He is a dapper little fellow, dresses in European clothes and is much interested in colleges, many of which he will visit while in America.

HAS CISTERN FOR HOME.

Where a San Francisco Man Has Lived Since the "Recent Unpleasantness."

The spirit of the cave dwellers is not dead. This is shown by the temporary home of Maj. I. H. Tomlinson, who has lived since the recent unpleasantness in a cistern at the corner of Broadway and Jones street, San Francisco.

The cistern is in the summit of a hill on the Demarest estate and is reached through a short tunnel. A rough opening has been made in the wall, and in this primitive doorway the occupant may be seen smoking the pipe of contentment, as indifferent to earthquakes as were his ancestors of the stone age.

A cat shares the subterranean apartment and pictures from the magazines have been pasted upon its walls. It had been the intention of the owners of the property to make a curio room of the cistern, which is about ten feet across, and its walls had been covered with whitewash. The smoke of the conflagration, however, converted this to black.

Maj. Tomlinson has found the solid bedrock in which his abode is sunken

SHE PREFERRED TO STAND

Street Car Strap Is Much Nicer When One Has on New Clothes.

By the time the car reached Fort-eth street there were no fewer than a dozen vacant seats, but the girl in the new tailor-made gown refused to avail herself of their hospitality, relates the New York Press. The messenger boy pointed them out to her. So did the woman in blue and the man with the red beard, but to all invitations to make herself comfortable the tailored girl said: "No, I thank you. I get off soon," and continued to lurch backward and forward in the middle of the car.

The conductor watched her grimly. "I could have told those folks it was no use to try to make that girl sit down," he said to a passenger on the platform. "She never does. I used to try to get her to rest herself for a minute or two, just for a change, but I never could do it. She has been riding in my car pretty regularly for about a year, and no matter whether the passengers are many or few seldom have I seen her sit down. I used to wonder why she choose to stand up and flop around that way, but I

FISHERMAN'S DAUGHTER.

By HELEN CHASE.

Luke came striding along the creek road with haste. He and Capt. Hutchinson were to sail over in the Bay Queen, the trim little sailboat moored just over yonder, and land at one of the beaches six miles away. They would sleep in a certain shelter hut known to all the old salts on the coast, and be up bright and early to do a day's fishing. Then home again over the bay on Christmas Eve, and ho! for the grand Christmas party "Mis' Hutcherson" was to give!

"Hi, Luke!" sang out the captain, hailing him as he came up the path to the house. "Jes' wonderin' whar'n Tophet you waz!"

"Where's Celeste?" said Luke, his strong face taking on a gentle look. "She'll be here directly," said Mrs. Hutchinson, evasively.

Celeste was the daughter of her first marriage. She had been a dainty, odd little wail, who had never enjoyed her stepfather, either in her childhood or girlish days. Luke gave her a dog-like devotion, and she had accepted his love in the same passive way she had taken everything else in her unsatisfied, restless life, among people with whom she had no sympathy, even to the patient, honest mother who bore her.

"Can't wait for no courtin' bizness to-day," said the old bayman, petulant-ly, who couldn't see how Luke could fancy Celeste, with her pale face, while Evelyania, his own pretty daughter, with her poppy-colored cheeks, was nigh.

"Evy," he called, but she had slipped away down the path. "Fur's I know, Celeste is off somewhere 'long o' Pierre, an' that'll make Luke right mad to see 'em together."

Pierre was a young Frenchman who had played for dancing at the big summer hotel of the place, and who now lingered, making music with his violin for country balls and dances.

As the Bay Queen glided away from the shore into open water a gleam of a bit of red stuff caught Luke's eye in a secluded spot on the beach; and the good bayman's red left his cheek as he saw Celeste, with a gay scarf wrapped about her, and the arms of Mrs. Hutchinson, as she hurried out into the kitchen to shut out the hateful sight. She was jealous for the absent Luke.

The storm was now a fearful thing. In all her 30 years of living on the bay front Mrs. Hutchinson remembered nothing like it. Pierre got out his violin and tried to drown the noise of it with loud, brilliant music, but he could not conceal nor cover the trembling of the house, the terrible shiver of every beam, rafter and plank within it.

Suddenly a thin stream of water crept under the front door.

"Lord a-massy," cried Mrs. Hutchinson, "the creek's a-risin'!"

Even so, it was. The water gained rapidly; it was a foot—two feet—deep upon the floor. The women got together some fuel, bread, blankets and a flask of spirits, and all together they ascended the narrow stairs—perhaps for the last time, they thought—to the garret. Then Pierre kindled a fire in the little air-tight stove, and the four sat down to await the end of the tempest, or else a sudden lifting of the old house by the tide surging around it, and a swift sweeping of the ancient structure out to sea.

"Aho! aho! Somebody open that window!" There was a sudden thud against the side of the house as a boat came up under the window. "The house'll never stan' till mornin'. You'll all be swept away! Come, hurry up! We've come to take you off!" It was Joe Bradley, the boldest young bayman of the shore, who shouted these words to them as he kept his boat with great difficulty alongside of the house.

"The rest kin go if they wants to," said Mrs. Hutchinson; "but, as fur me—"

Her sentence remained unfinished, and in the tumult and confusion may have been misunderstood. At any rate, Celeste and Pierre got into the boat, which a violent gust of wind wrenched away from the house, and it was seen no more.

The two deserted women crept close together, clasping each other's hands, and thus they kept their lonely vigil in the now desolate house.

"Le's sing somethin', ma," said Evelyania, after they had watched thus half an hour or so. "Don't you kinder miss Pierre's fiddle music? An' its Chris'mus mornin', too, now—it's four o'clock."

The pale unearthly light of the Christmas dawn stole into the room. What a sight met the eye, as its pallid beams illuminated the landscape! A raging, furious sea filled the spot where yesterday had stretched pleasant meadows and gardens, and where stood the houses of the neighbors, submerged to their upper stories most of them were now. Bits of wreckage, and boats floating bottom upward, were everywhere seen.

"Aho! aho!" again shouted Joe Bradley, coming back. "Got enny grub?"

"Yes," they shouted back, "thank ye," and then Evelyania faltered out: "Have you—have you seen anything of the Bay Queen?"

"Not yit," answered Joe, trying to speak courageously.

"An' S'leste—" said her mother, hastily.

"All right," was the brief answer, as Joe pulled quickly away.

The water began to subside and, as if worn out, the storm abated. One hour after another the two women sat with despairing eyes fixed on the distant horizon. But no battered and bruised Bay Queen came, beating her way slowly into the creek. The women scanned with feverish eyes each bit of wreckage that floated by, fearing to recognize some portion of the brave little craft.

A third time Joe's boat came up to the window with offers of assistance. The skipper would take them away anywhere they wished to go. There was his mother, now, whose house was dry and warm. She would be only too glad to take them in.

"No," said Mrs. Hutchinson, "S'leste would be comin' back soon." Then, eying Joe sharply, she said: "Where is she? What cher keepin' back from me?"

"Wall, if yer will know," said Joe, as if every word were being forced out of him, "S'leste and Pierre went to the city this mornin' after Father McKay had marri'd 'em."

The mother sat as if stunned. Evelyania crept to her softly, and said: "You know, ma, as there was things 'bout S'leste that wan't in us to understand. Po'try and that air high music, an' sech like; an' Pierre, he understood all them strange, uncommon things, an' she c'd talk to him 'bout 'em like she couldn't to us, an' so we musn't blame her so much, for she loved Pierre, an' when you love anybody—"

Evelyania's voice sank down to a whisper. She looked out at the sea and covered her face with her hands.

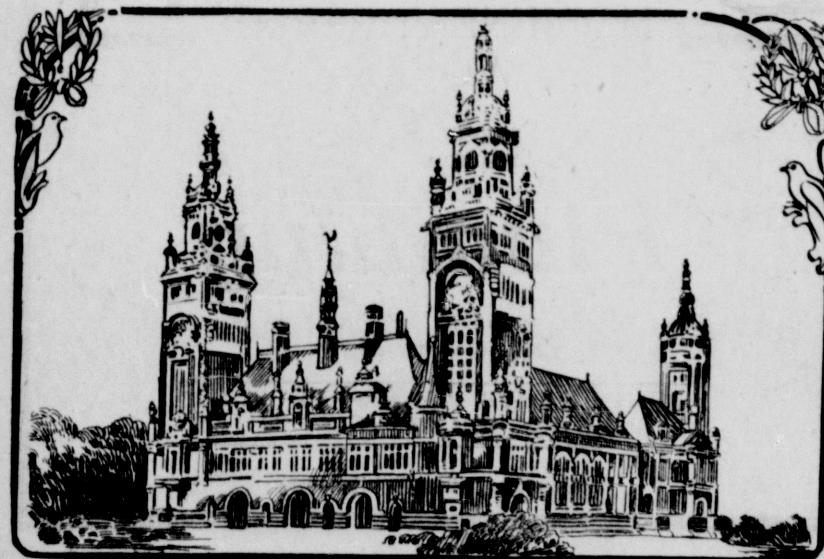

Another hour passed. The short December day was drawing to a close. Suddenly there was a great noise and commotion under the window; Joe Bradley, shouting and laughing:

"Hullo, there, Mis' Hutcherson! The Bay Queen's heerd from; she drifted right onto the beach whar the life-savin' station men be, capsize, an' Luke an' the cap'n held on. The cap'n, he's putty much beat out, and won't be hum for a day or two, but—"

Evelyania could stand it no longer. She rushed down the slippery stairs, tore open the door with strong, desperate fingers, plunged into a foot of water, as she cleared the porch, and found Luke's great, burly arms about her.

DESIGN WHICH WON FIRST PRIZE FOR CARNEGIE PEACE PALACE AT THE HAGUE

the illustration is shown the winning design for the palace of peace at The Hague, which is to be erected by Mr. Carnegie. The winner is L. M. Cordonnier, of Lille, France, who has been awarded $3,000 for his work. In all 3,038 drawings were sent in, and but one prize comes to America, Howard Greenley and H. S. Olin, of New York, being awarded $750.

The winning design is an excellently executed conception of a northern French chateau. The main building is flanked with high towers, two of which are at either end of the facade, and the chief feature of the interior will be a magnificent "hall of arbitration," where the peace conferences will be held.

Mr. Cordonnier, who is 48 years of age, already has achieved distinction in architectural drawing, for in 1885 he won the first prize for the Amsterdam bourse. For the palace of peace plans 217 architects competed. The second and third prizes went to Paris and Charlottenberg.

The government of the Netherlands has selected the military parade ground, near the Bosch, as the site for the palace of peace. The Bosch is a park, nearly two miles long, a short distance out of The Hague. It abounds in forest trees, which are allowed to grow unclipped.

have come to the conclusion that she does it because her clothes fit so well.

"I have seen lots of other people with the same trick. When I find a woman who insists upon standing in a car where there are vacant seats I look at her clothes, and it turns out nine times in ten, that she has a good figure and a dress that wouldn't show a wrinkle under a microscope.

Lightning clouds are always near the ground. They are seldom at greater height than 2,000 feet.

LAND OF MYSTICISM.

Persia probably doesn't know she's a sore problem to the foreign secretaries of nations, besides being the despair of all missionaries. Her shah—"king of kings"—ensconced in barbaric splendor in his vast rambling palace at Teheran is, of course, a mere puppet juggled alternately by Russia and Great Britain, both of whose huge empires impinge upon that of the "shadow of God upon earth." A land of other days, Persia's glory is departed, like that of the Medes and Parthians, the Babylonians and Assyrians. Her cities are crumbling to ruin; her laws are the whims of grand viziers; her court a mere hotbed of harem intrigue more strange than any found even in the glowing pages of "The Arabian Nights."—Four-Track News.

Pierre had stayed with the women in the little house on the marsh. He drew close to Celeste, laughing and telling droll stories to divert her.

The candidates are getting right down to business these days, having only a little over a month in which to gather their strength for the contest in the primaries.

Dallas is the headquarters of a movement to organize farm laborers throughout the state into local unions of ten or more men. The labor unions of the cities are said to be co-operating with the movement.

BELL RINGS TRUE.

Brazos for Bell
Sounds mighty well;
Hope it's the tale
Primaries will tell.

Governor yet.
Saying a good deal?
Had some the best
With whom a people
Ever were blest?
Well spoken truly
None will deny.
On Bell as safely
We may rely.

Mr. Forkner, a practical farmer, moved to Athens, Henderson county, from Michigan last year. He bought a farm near town, on which he is making his first crop. He broke his land so deep that it was a source of comment. He planted about nine acres in Irish potatoes, from which he has gathered an average of 100 bushels to the acre and sold them at 86c per bushel. He is now growing corn where the potatoes grew. That does pretty well for a man who is new to the country, especially for the first year. Wonderful things can be done on Texas soil if every opportunity is taken advantage of.—Galveston News.

First you eat a steaming dinner of vegetables, then stow away about a hodful of ice cream, after which you make a commuter's dash for the car, and on the way down town read a column or so of morbid murders. To this add a thirty-minute packery argument and a limeade, and if you get through the summer without heading a slow procession or making running jumps at a padded wall you will confer a favor upon this office by sending in your latest photo.—Ft. Worth Star.

E. L. Blackshear, principal of Prairie View Normal, has called a state meeting in Houston July 4, 5 and 6 to organize a colored farmers' congress.

FOR TAX COLLECTOR.

The Eagle is authorized to announce Mr. J. W. Barron as a candidate for tax collector of Brazos county subject to the action of the democratic primaries. Mr. Barron has been a resident of Brazos county since 1869 and has lived in Bryan continuously since 1890. Mr. Barron kept books for Mr. Boyett, father of City Marshal T. P. Boyett and County Clerk W. C. Boyett in 1870-71-72, engaged in farming ten years, taught school two years, was manager of the Grange store at Harvey five years, served seven years as county clerk of Brazos county, and has for ten years been continuously in the employ of Sanders Bros. of this city. Mr. Barron is a good man and has been faithful to every trust and obligation in public and private life. He made a most efficient and courteous county clerk, and is fully qualified for the duties of the office of tax collector. He is well known to the people of Brazos county, and comes before them with the assurance that if honored with their choice he will prove as worthy of their confidence in the future as in the past. The Eagle presents his claims with pleasure.

THE MARKETS.

Special to The Eagle.
Stock Yards, Kansas City, Mo., June 18, 1906.

Quarantine receipts last week were 8500 head including 2000 calves. The cattle numbered about the same as corresponding week a year ago, but less than 200 calves came in a year ago last week, and the big supply of calves was the feature last week. Buyers showed a desire for large numbers of cattle all of last week, and the market closed a quarter higher than Monday in spite of the liberal supply. Run in quarantine division today is about like last Monday, 3200 cattle and 1600 calves, market steady on good cattle and calves, weak to 10 lower on medium to common grades. Fed steers sold today at $3.85 to $4.40, grass steers $3.15 to $3.70, cows $2.20 to $2.60, veals a shade lower, $5.25 to $6.00. Dry weather has not yet directly forced in any cattle to speak of, but some shippers have put their stuff forward sooner than they otherwise might, in anticipation of a possible drouth. Good rains have fallen in Kansas and Nebraska last night and today, and more is predicted, so that indications of a drouth have disappeared for the present. Packers seem to be able to dispose of all the available supply of killing cattle, and only claim concessions on canner grades account of the late agitation, trade in all other kinds apparently uninjured.

Receipts of hogs last week, 79,400, were heaviest since December, 1901, more than four years ago, yet prices closed the week strong, and a shade above close of previous week. Buyers need large number of hogs, and are unable to stick together long enough to effectually reduce prices. A combination was formed last Tuesday and the market broke 10 cents, but all hands were scrambling for hogs early Wednesday, giving sellers the best of it balance of the week. Market is strong to 5 higher today, top $6.60, bulk $6.40 to $6.55, light weight up to $6.50, a shade nearer the top than a week ago.

A CARD FROM J. M. RALSTON.

To the Democratic voters of the 20th Judicial District:

The District court of Robertson county, convened on the 11th, instant., and will remain in session until after the Primary; my duties as District Attorney require my personal attendance upon said court, which makes it absolutely impossible for me to make a personal canvass of the District in the interest of my candidacy for reelection to the office of District Attorney.

I am now serving my first term; if my services have been satisfactory, and I urge each voter to carefully investigate my record, I would thank you for your indorsement of the same, to be evidenced by your support in the Primary of July 28.

I promise you the same careful attention to the duties of this office in the future as I have given it in the past, supplemented by the experience acquired during the last two years. I will use at all times my best efforts to enforce the law without fear or favor.

Very respectfully,

J. M. Ralston.

Men's Fine Suits

Begins Monday, June 18th, at 8 o'clock

Don't miss this excellent opportunity to buy a Summer suit just at the beginning of the hot weather at a wonderful saving in price. Remember every suit in our store, except blacks and blues, is included in this sale; nothing reserved. We inflate no prices here, every garment in our store is marked in plain figures; you can see exactly what it sold for.

A little earlier this season than usual, but owing to our fast increasing Clothing business, we were compelled to almost double our stock this season to accommodate our trade. Naturally we have a larger stock of odds and ends in Men's Fine Suits on hand than in former seasons. This is to your advantage, not ours. First, you have a much larger assortment to select from and second you have a longer time to wear your suit, at least four months of summer weather yet to come.

We offer you the following big reductions during this sale:

REVOLTING EVIDENCE.

Correspondent Had to Go to Another
City to Telegraph Details.

Grodno, Russia, June 20.—Owing to the refusal of the censor at Bialystok
to permit free telegraphing of the result of the investigation of the massacre of Jews the correspondent of the Associated Press came here. The anti-Jewish rioting at Bialystok has ended.
Troops are in full control, and in view of the indignation aroused it is certain the authorities will not permit the horrors to be repeated. This region is greatly excited, owing to the fear that the Bialystok massacre is only the signal for a general attack on the Jews throughout Russia and Poland. But if any such conspiracy exists it is too large to carry out the plans, as the most imperative orders to prevent further outbreaks have been issued to governors and governor generals from St. Petersburg.

When the correspondent arrived at Bialystok Sunday morning the worst was already over, but on all sides there was revolting evidence of the savage bestiality on the part of blood drunken mobs which sacked and burned Jewish homes, shops and stores. For seventy-two hours, with a slight abatement during the daytime, murder,
blood and pillage went on unchecked.
The inhumanity displayed would have done credit to the Mongol hordes of Cenghis Khan in his conquests of China and central Asia in the Thirteenth century.

At first police and troops had urged the mobs, but, dismayed by the bloody deeds accomplished, they reluctantly sought to obey the orders of their superiors and put an end to the work of the rapacious bands of rousers, who were so far beyond the control of local forces that regiment after regiment had to be thrown into the city before order could be restored.

During the rioting the Jews were hunted down by their ferocious pursuers, who, in a majority of cases, were not content with killing their victims, but tore them to pieces like wild animals. While this was in progress troops stood idly by, or, as was more frequently the case, fired into houses where Jews were concealed under pretext that they believed them to be revolutionists, but really to make way for murderers and plunderers,
who followed in the soldiers' wake.

While it is impossible to give the exact figures, the visits of the correspondent to hospitals and cemeteries enables him to approximate the killed at 100 Jews and twenty Christians and the wounded at 150 Jews and seven Christians.

The question of the origin of the massacre is being carefully investigated. Although many of the Jews denied that a bomb was thrown at the corpus Christi procession Thursday, the fact that a bomb was thrown is established beyond doubt. The question who threw the bomb remains unsettled, however. Accounts of impartial witnesses, however, demonstrate that insulting epithets enraged the Jews, who attacked the religious procession.

FILLED WITH VISITORS.

Thousands at Norway's Capital to Witness Coronation of King.

Trondhjem, June 20.—The French armored cruiser Admiral Aube (carrying the special French embassy to the coronation of King Haakon), has arrived here. The member of the French embassy soon landed. They were received by officers of the royal household, given a guard of honor and driven to the palace, where King Haakon received the embassy and thanked them and their nation for the presence here on the occasion of his coronation.

Leading members of the Norwegian
cabinet, headed by Premier Michelson, left Christiania for Trondhjem. Major William Gibson, American military attache at St. Petersburg, arrived here to attend the coronation. Trondhjem continues to fill with visitors and the crowds through the streets. The palace and cathedral are centers of interest.

TOWN SEIZED.

Santo Domingo Revolutionists, However, Soon Retired.

Washington, June 20.—The state department has received dispatches from Commander W. H. Sutherland of the navy, in command of the Yankee, saying there have been serious disturbances in the vicinity of Monte Christi, Santo Domingo.

Revolutionists advanced on the town
of Dajabon, near the Haytien border,
and seized it, but soon afterwards returned to the interior.

Secretary Taft received letters from George R. Bolton, in charge of custom house receipts in Santo Domingo, in which Mr. Bolton states that the importance of recent revolutions in Santo Domingo has been exaggerated,
and that in reality all of the outbreaks have been purely local in nature, and have had little influence on the government.

OFFICERS CHOSEN.

Selection of Next Meeting Place Left to Executive Committee.

Philadelphia, June 20.—The National League of Republican Clubs elected the following officers: President, General
E. A. McAlpin, New York; vice president, H. H. Myers, Little Rock; secretary, Chauncey Dewey, Hamilton, O.;
treasurer, W. G. Porter, South Dakota.
The selection of the next place of meeting was left to the executive committee.

Steamer's Narrow Escape.
Dallas, June 20.—Steamer Frank P.
Holland caught fire, and but for the prompt action of Captain Armistead and Engineer McElroy the flames
would have reached some dynamite.
Flames were quickly checked.

RETIICENT.

He to Be Quoted Relative to
'05 in His Country.

Vicancy, France, June 20.—Count
Witte, the former premier of Russia, who came here for a rest and to take the cure, his health being somewhat impaired by the hard work, refused to be quoted in connection with Russian politics, taking the ground that it would only be against his own personal interest, but also against the interests of his country. In this connection he was pleased to receive a correspondent of the Associated Press.

COUNT WITTE.

who had known him at the Portsmouth
peace conference, and have a long and interesting conversation, recalling pleasantly the time spent at the Hotel Wentworth.

Faithful to the promise given to the promise given to Count Witte, the correspondent is unable to cable a direct interview with him, but can give a brief review of the situation in Russia
as looked on, possibly, from Witte's point of view.

It is generally known that M. Witte is favorable to the progressive development of Russian institutions, while maintaining order. Therefore he cannot approve of the action of the lower house of parliament, which, according to the count, is doing its utmost to develop into a revolutionary body, and not only delays the reforms which it advocates, but contributes to create and maintain a state of chaos, resulting from the conflict between the executive and legislative branches of the government. Russia needs peace, order and confidence in the men who are earnestly desirous to heal the wounds and to enter upon a period of economic, intellectual resurrection.
Instead of this, the revolutionists, under the pretext of patriotism, which really is false patriotism, are serving the interests of the foreign enemies of their country by transforming Russia
into the powder magazine of Europe.
This is not generally known abroad,
and it is especially regrettable with regard to the Americans, who always have been good friends of the Russians. The two countries should know each other better to their reciprocal advantage.

It is also known that Witte is personally favorable to the Hebrews and their desires as contained in the memorandum presented to him when at Portsmouth by the committee of prominent American Jews, but he strongly condemns the attitude which the Jews are assuming in Russia in placing themselves at the head of the revolutionary movement against the advice of their own enlightened leaders.

WAS RUBBER BALL.

Manager of Montgomery Baseball Club
So Notifies the President.

Montgomery, Ala., June 20.—President Amerine of the Montgomery Baseball club has received a letter from Manager Mullaney to the effect that a ball used in the New Orleans game Sunday, June 10, which was secured by Centerfielder Appinus, has been found to be made practically of rubber. The ball was the last one hit during the game, and was caught by Apperius. At Shreveport it was opened in the presence of Manager Gilks.
President Amerine has instructed Mullaney to lay the entire matter before Judge William Kavanaugh, president of the Southern Baseball league.

Frank Knows Nothing of It.

New Orleans, June 20.—Manager
Frank of the New Orleans team said that he knows nothing about the charge that elastic was used in wrapping a ball belonging to his club. He said that he does not understand why Manager Mullaney waited until after he had arrived in Shreveport before opening the ball.
